RENOVATION 2020

PHASE THREE: The Kids Room

We're almost there! At our print deadline, the construction crews were taking care of the last details and staff were moving picture books to their new shelves in the Kids Room. In fact, all of our books are now back from storage and available for you to check out and enjoy.

skokielibrary.info/renovation

What does a collection development librarian do

Meet Our Collection Development Team

Making sure we have the best materials possible for you to check out and use is the mission of our collection development staff. It's a huge responsibility choosing among the overwhelming number of titles published every year, and that's only a part of their jobs. Meet them and find out more about what they do and how much they love their jobs and our community.

Dave

Curates: youth nonfiction, biography, graphic novel, and paperback series collections

"It's my job to select materials that are well-balanced, accurate, and desirable. I also remove, or "weed" materials that are in poor condition, contain incorrect or outdated information, and show evidence of lack of use or interest."

Currently reading Bloom by Kenneth Oppel, and watching the exciting second season of For All Mankind

Megan

Curates: adult fiction, romance, cooking, health, self-help, home and garden, arts, crafts, pets, travel, sports, and CD audiobooks

"I make sure we have books that our patrons expect to find, plus plenty of books that surprise them, expand their horizons and fill them with the joys of learning, imagining, and reflecting their emotions. There's also a lot of physical work, since we're constantly displaying, shifting, moving, and adjusting our collections to make them more accessible and attractive."

Currently reading Just As I Am by Cicely Tyson

Curates: world languages

Larissa

"My first language is Russian. My passion is to make sure all members of the community have access to books and other materials in the language they want. I provide support to language learners and can give recommendations in almost any language the library has. I will never tell you 'we can't get it for you' if the item exists somewhere in the world."

Currently reading This Other Eden by Ben Elton, and watching Resident Alien

Curates: adult nonfiction, mysteries, large type, adult and teen graphic novels, and oversize paperback fiction

Steven

"I make discoveries so our patrons can make discoveries. I have to know a lot about books, of course, but just as important, I need to know about Skokie readers. I have a wonderful job because I absolutely believe in the product I am supporting. I know through my own experience that books can make for a better, richer, more pleasurable life."

Currently reading A Place for Everything: The Curious History of Alphabetical Order by Judith Flanders

What is the funniest thing you've found on the shelves?

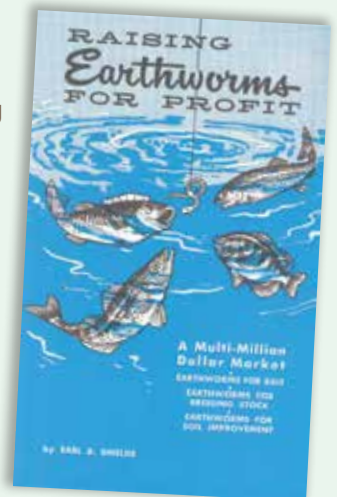

I once found a family photo. Luckily, I recognized them and was able to return it to the family.

—Dave

I always giggle at books on dog obedience that come back to the library all chewed up. (We replace those copies.) —Megan

I made a point of keeping our withdrawn 1959 copy of Raising Earthworms for Profit in case this librarian thing doesn't work out for me.

—Steven

Personal pictures, receipts from stores, a few medical insurance cards, squares of toilet paper. People use anything as bookmarks! —Larissa

What's something you wish more people knew about your work ?

Denise

Curates: junior high and teen collections, digital materials (Overdrive) for kids and teens, and video games for all ages

"I don't get to read all day (but I'd love to!). Sometimes people write off young adult novels as "bad," but I promise that they are some of the best books out there for adults as well as teens right now!"

Currently reading Love Is a Revolution by Renee Watson, and watching Kim's Convenience

Annabelle

Curates: adult eBooks and downloadable audiobooks, science fiction, and technology

"Publishers do not send libraries free books! We have to buy them all through various distributors."

Currently reading A World without Email by Cal Newport, and watching the HBO series High Maintenance

Sharon

Curates: movies and music

"Most popular original movies and series created to stream on subscription services such as Netflix, Amazon Prime, Hulu or Apple TV+ usually are not available to order on DVD/Blu-ray, but I keep checking!"

Currently reading Dark Archive: Invisible Library Novel 7 by Genevieve Cogman, and watching lots of things for awards season

Christine

Curates: youth fiction from birth through grade 5

"How interesting it is! It's also super time-consuming. I don't just sit at a computer and order books."

Currently reading On Fire by Naomi Klein and rewatching Game of Thrones

What are YOU reading or watching?

In a recent week, these four types of items accounted for almost a quarter of everything checked out:

Picture books
Feature films
Easy readers
Kids fiction (also known as chapter books)

More great things found on shelves

An airplane ticket being used as a bookmark.
I love to know that our patrons are taking our materials with them on their adventures. —Denise

A baggie containing part of a sandwich that someone put down and forgot
—Christine

An uncashed rent check made out to a coworker
—Annabelle

An LP record
(with proper Skokie Public Library stickers) anonymously left in the AV area many years after we stopped circulating LPs.
File under 'better late, than never.'
—Sharon

Basics of Selecting Materials for the Library

Here are a few of the factors our staff use to decide whether we should purchase any particular item:

- Is the author or subject popular in our community?
- Has it received good reviews?
- Do we already have something very similar to it?
- Does it represent a viewpoint not already well represented by our other materials?
- Is it new information in a field where knowledge changes quickly?
- Do we have space for it?
- Is it the best use of available funds?

Basics of "Deselecting" Library Materials

Sometimes the decision to withdraw an item is easy, sometimes it is difficult. Here are some of the factors involved:

- Is the content inaccurate or misleading?
- Is the item worn out or damaged beyond repair?
- Has a new edition been published?
- Is a newer or more comprehensive book on the same subject now available?
- Have people checked out this item?
